Distinctive Features of the Course:

Do you want to learn more about crime and the world of criminal justice? Our graduates gain an in-depth knowledge and understanding of various areas of criminal justice and criminology, both theoretical and applied.

At level 3 you can develop the skills and knowledge that you need to study at undergraduate level, building on your strengths and working on your weaknesses, so that you can feel confident that by the end of the first year that you are ready to commence a degree course, and to apply the skills to undertake the directed and independent learning which will help you to achieve your potential.

At levels 4-6 you will learn about a range of topics from the criminal justice system and how it functions, the causes and consequences of crime, victimology, rehabilitation, the history of crime and punishment. By combining with law, you will also gain experience in key areas of criminal law, housing law and refugee law. With pathways related to specific topics (for example, probation) you can tailor what you study to your own interests and desired career.

With teaching developed and delivered by research-led staff you can be sure you are learning about the latest research and debates in policy and practice. Teaching and assessment are facilitated through various approaches to provide something for everyone.

At every level of your degree, you will have the opportunity to undertake volunteering with a relevant organisation to further your experience within the field and develop your transferable skills. Even if you choose not to do this, there is still an emphasis on employability at every level.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The Foundation Year will introduce you to studying at university. You will develop your academic and study skills alongside studying modules that introduce you to the disciplines offered by courses across the Faculty. The Foundation Year will therefore provide a springboard for successful study at levels 4, 5 and 6.

Crime and its impact are at the forefront of current political and social debate. A degree in criminology and criminal justice with law enables you to explore the reality behind the newspaper headlines on crime and examine a topic which is relevant, topical and has real, practical application in contemporary society. You will also cover a number of key law subject areas which link to the criminology side of your course. You will study a wide range of topics covering the legal and sociological issues of criminology and criminal justice, including, the operation of the criminal courts through punishment and sentencing and policing of society. You will also cover a range of areas of law which are of specific relevance to this field of study. You have the opportunity to undertake a research project on behalf of a relevant statutory or voluntary agency or you can undertake a piece of individual research in law and criminology or criminal justice that particularly interests you. Students who graduate from the BA Criminology, Criminal Justice and Law course will have an in-depth knowledge and understanding of crime and its consequences, both theoretical and applied. In addition they will have a clear grasp of a number of specific legal subjects.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

This course is informed by the University's inclusivity framework.

We use a wide range of learning activities to support your achievement of the course learning outcomes. These include:

seminars

lectures

interactive lectures

small and large group work

student presentations

community-based learning through placements documentaries

guest speakers

research activities

online discussion forums

online activities

field trips

These have been carefully developed to support both your topic learning and the development of transferable skills that are important for graduates and employers. There will be one-to-one support where required, in particular the final year research project.

Assessment Methods

At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment are used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your university studies and into your working life. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities, such as:

Written examinations (including online examinations, open and closed book examinations, and quizzes),

Coursework (for example, essays, reports, portfolios, project proposals and briefs, poster presentation), and Practical (for example, oral or group presentations and developing podcasts,).

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, you are expected to write an extended piece of work or research in the form of a dissertation on a criminological or criminal justice area of your choice. This gives you an opportunity to utilise the skills you have developed over the course of your research and produce a piece of work based on a topic of particular interest to you. You are also assigned a supervisor who will guide and support you in developing your dissertation topic and completing the research.

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

General University support:

University Learning Centres are the key source of academic information for students. Learning Centres provide physical library resources (books, journal, DVDs etc.) and offer a range of study areas to allow students to study in the environment that suit them best: Social areas, quiet and silent areas. Learning Centres also provide access to wide range of online information sources, including eBooks, e-Journals and subject databases.

Learning Centres also provide students with academic skills support via the Skills for Learning programme. Students on campus can attend workshops or ask for one-to-one help on a range of skills such as academic writing and referencing. Students can access a range of online skills material at: www.wlv.ac.uk/lib/skills

The University Student Support website offers advice on a variety of matters (careers, counselling, student union advice, etc.) Students can also access these services by booking appointment with the SU, careers, counselling services, etc.

Course Specific Support

Development of academic skills is at the heart of this course with academic study skills embedded in core level 4 modules; the development of study skills enables students to complete the course successfully. The development of academic skills is also embedded in the research methods module at level 5, with particular focus on both doing and understanding research. E-advice, one-to-one consultation appointments, workshops and re-sit sessions are all regularly available. Where appropriate online activities will support learning.

You will receive feedback informally throughout the modules and formally through written feedback (electronically where appropriate via the VLE) for your formative and summative assignments. Feedback is designed to be constructive and to indicate how to progress in your learning and further develop your skills.

You will be supported through their final year academic project or Community Link project by an allocated academic supervisor. All students will have a personal tutor to support their progress throughout their course. The University's Student Enabling Centre provides a wide range of support for students with varying disabilities.

Students will be able to access the ASK@WLV service on-campus, over the phone and online. Our friendly and dedicated team of advisors will be there to help students get the support they need to make the most out of their time at university.

Find ASK@ on campus:

- City Campus: Ambika Paul Building, next to the Harrison Library.
- Walsall Campus: In the Performance Hub.
- Telford Campus: In the Darby Building.

ASK@WLV will also be a mobile service, offering pop-up opportunities throughout the year for students to get support at key locations across different parts of each of our campuses.

Students can Log a question online in e:Vision: www.wlv.ac.uk/evision

Employability in the Curriculum:

The course has been mapped to the University's graduate attributes framework. Recent graduates are working in a variety of Criminal Justice agencies including the Police, Prisons and Probation services while others are employed in related fields such as offender and victim support organisations, youth work, fraud investigation, community work, civil service, immigration, and social work. Others continue their study in law to enter the legal profession. However, not everyone wants to work within criminal justice when they have completed their undergraduate course and many of our graduates continue with postgraduate study, such as a Master's or PhD, teaching, public relations, lecturing, or social sciences research.

The curriculum remains diverse and inclusive in covering a broad range of criminological and criminal justice and Law aspects and practices on crime, punishment, rehabilitation, criminalisation, harm, human rights, and victimisation and provides options for students to focus on the areas in which they are mostly interested. This means that our graduates will have had the opportunity to tailor their degree to the areas linked to their career aspirations whether these are predominantly victim-, offender-, or research-based as well as develop transferable skills applicable to non-criminal justice settings too.

This degree develops skills which are appropriate to a range of careers from the civil service to various management roles. All modules provide the academic background and scholarship necessary for postgraduate study and further research in governmental, private, voluntary, or charity organisations. The course also provides a number of employability pathways via the variety and choice of modules offered. A probation pathway is in place where graduates of the course interested in joining the Probation Service are eligible for the reduced period of probation officer training if they have taken undergraduate modules in the specified areas, these are The Criminal Justice System, Understanding Crime and Criminal Behaviour, Penal Policy and the Punishment of Offenders, and Rehabilitation of Offenders all of which are embedded in the corresponding modules offered in the course.
