Entry Requirements:

Entry requirements are subject to regular review. The entry requirements applicable to a particular academic year will be published on the University website (and externally as appropriate e.g. UCAS)

96 UCAS points A Levels - grades CCC / BCD BTEC L3 Extended Diploma or OCR Cambridge L3 Technical Extended Diploma - grades MMM BTEC L3 Diploma - grades DD Access to HE Diploma: 45 L3 credits at Merit International entry requirements and application guidance can be found at <http://www.wlv.ac.uk/international/apply> Students must usually have studied for a minimum of two years post GCSE level. However, we will consider applications from mature students who do not have two years of post-16 study, where they have relevant work experience. Please see <http://wlv.ac.uk/mature> for further information. Students may apply for RPL and receive credit, subject to the guidelines set out in the University of Wolverhampton RPL guidelines.

Distinctive Features of the Course:

This is one of a handful of courses in the UK that offers this particular joint award with creative and professional writing (many do not offer both elements). You will also have the opportunity to engage with a Learning Pathway choosing either Poetry, Prose, Professional or Specialist Writings via a range of optional modules at Level 5. These pathways are designed to both enable you to take ownership over your learning and become more specialist within your writing practice, and work as complementary to English Literatures modules. Some modules are interdisciplinary in their nature and delivery (e.g. 5EN007 Children's Literature); others will offer you the opportunity to study writers of the region as your potential contemporaries (e.g. 4EN013 The Midlands in Literature), or to explore a form that can enhance written practice in terms of genre (e.g. 4EN008 Making a Scene/5EN011 Adventures in the Gothic). There are also modules that will offer insight into the transcultural literary landscape that now delineates the publishing industry (e.g. 6EN004 The Centre Cannot Hold: Postcolonial Texts). This will not only better prepare you for industry and working within literary fields, but you will be equipped with the tools for the business of writing and to manage a portfolio career.##This programme is devised to enable writers to write and read widely around their subject; to develop skills, talent, and style within a variety of writing contexts, creative and professional. This is all enhanced by the dual focus of analysing existing literatures in terms of genre and subject and understanding how historical contexts continue to apply to our writing today. Led by a team of active published writers and leading academics in their fields of expertise, we work to the ethos that 'as you write it, we are writing too', offering an inclusive and supportive environment as one cohesive learning, reading, and writing community. We are aware of what writers need to do in terms of the business of writing; how our knowledge and passion for literatures enables our practice, and therefore offer a continuous platform of support and guidance alerting students to the many career routes a writer can pursue. Our new Learning Pathways programme will enable you to take ownership of your own learning from Level 5, allowing you to either pursue a more specialist approach to your writing, mastering your medium, work piecemeal across the different forms and styles of writing we study, or opt for literatures-based modules to complement practice. The programme will introduce you to the relevant concepts and theories associated with writing and readerships, and encourage you to work across disciplines via our collaborative partnerships with the School of Art. A dedicated Writing Week in Week 7 brings the whole cohort together - UG and PG students - as one learning community, offering dedicated writing spaces and access to authors and industry experts. This degree will not only nurture your reading, literary knowledge, critical skills, and practice by enabling you to foster a profound understanding of your authorial intentions and process, but enable you to communicate more effectively, and, through informal workshops, enhance your own creative and critical judgement. Consequently, you will develop a range of vital transferable skills including presentation and oral performance; social media management and digital literacy; close reading skills for editing and proof reading; enterprise and entrepreneurship; project management and working collaboratively, all of which are of immense value in graduate employment and freelance/portfolio careers.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

This programme is delivered through a variety of pedagogical methods that are either module specific or suited to the facilitation of creative writing as an academic subject. We use a combination of lectures, seminars, and workshops complemented by project work, discussion, online interaction, group presentations, portfolio clinics, one-to-one tutorials, interdisciplinary projects, guest lectures, panel events, and a dedicated Writing Week that brings all students together as one learning community. A period of sustained independent study via the creative writing portfolio/English Literatures dissertation at Level 6 enables the student to process all programme content to date and direct it into practice. All modules encourage students to read widely and critically, to free write and write to task, exploring medium, style, and form. Assessments are via either an academic essay or creative portfolio submission accompanied by reflective commentaries and/or review pieces.

Assessment Methods:

At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your working life. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities:

Written examinations (including online examinations, open and closed book examinations and quizzes)
Coursework (for example, essays, reports, portfolios, project proposals and briefs, CVs, poster presentation)
Practical (for example, oral and video presentations, laboratory work, performances, practical skills assessment)

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

University Learning Centres are the key source of academic information for students. Learning Centres provide physical library resources (books, journal, DVDs etc.) and offer a range of study areas to allow students to study in the environment that suit them best: Social areas, quiet and silent areas. Learning Centres also provide access to wide range of online information sources, including eBooks, e-Journals and subject databases. Learning Centres also provide students with academic skills support via the Skills for Learning programme. Students on campus can attend workshops or ask for one-to-one help on a range of skills such as academic writing and referencing. Students can access a range of online skills material at: www.wlv.ac.uk/lib/skills. The University Student Support website offers advice on a variety of matters (careers, counselling, student union advice, etc.) Students can also access these services by booking appointment with the SU, careers, counselling services, etc.

Employability in the Curriculum:

This programme has been designed to embed employability within all of our modules, mindful of the business of writing, portfolio careers, working freelance, and within the creative communities. The Learning Pathway programme is itself designed to offer a way of developing expertise in a specific medium of writing so that you are better equipped to enter industry upon graduation. Equally, it offers insight into various publishing careers such as editing, commissioning, marketing, and PR. It also offers a definitive professional writing experience including Writing Features and Writing Futures as vocational modules, that offer numerous opportunities to write for specific career paths such as web copy, book blogging, feature writing, and editorial. Guest authors and industry experts, including panel events and a dedicated Writing Week, also offer direct insight into the creative industries and arts-based careers. Often, this had led to internships or work experience. All of our modules are designed to include presentation work; project management; self-directed study; time management; workshop communication; collaborative project work; realising ideas from genesis to production. We also offer you performance opportunities to showcase your work at literature festivals and open mics. The 24 week option at Level 6 in Writing the Novel offers you the chance to work towards a finished manuscript accompanied by synopsis, product analysis (in terms of literary marketplace), and advice in how to pitch to potential publishers.
