Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

You will experience a wide variety of learning activities in Dance and they will contribute to the development of your graduate attributes.

Teaching and learning will normally take place in a variety of continually evolving contexts, including an appropriate balance of the following kinds of activity:

a) Practical dance classes, workshops, rehearsals, productions, practical classes, studio-based practice, screenings, lectures, discussions (both online and in class), seminars, and tutorials. You will be encouraged to apply your knowledge and understanding of critical theories to case studies within regional, national and international contexts. These activities will be of particular help in developing your understanding of global citizenship.

b) Group and individual learning.

c) Work experience of varying types which will be of especial relevance in enhancing your employability and entrepreneurship.
d) Tutor-led, (peer-group) student-led, and self-directed study.

e) Use of subject-specific and generic technologies which will be particularly helpful in the development of your digital literacy.

f) Resource-based learning, including work in the learning centres and attendance at performances. This will be helpful in developing your digital literacy, enhancing your employability and ability to be enterprising, and increasing your awareness of global citizenship.

g) Opportunities to engage with the workplace might include: teaching in schools or youth/community contexts, leading workshops in educational contexts, public performances in theatres and public venues, performing and presenting in a range of community locations, and participating in workshops delivered by visiting professionals.

Learning activities in Dance will support your personal development, enable you to apply your learning to a range of different contexts, develop your understanding of the ways you might manage your future career, support your acquisition of subject-specific and generic skills, and help you to develop an understanding of how to deal with risk and uncertainty.

Student Support:

Academic study skills are supported through three modules, which start by developing academic skills at level 4, moving to more formal research methods at level 5, and culminating in the application of study skills to significant work-related and career-related activities in The Dance Project at level 6. The level 4 What is Dance? module is designed to prepare you for your study at university in fundamental aspects such as communications skills, personal development, and the use of feedback from assessments. These academic skills will be applied to your subject specialism.

You will also receive support for your learning from: your personal tutor, the dance subject librarian, the dance department technician, the dance department administrator, and departmental careers support (especially in relation to teaching, post-graduate study in a range of areas, and freelance dance work).

Additionally, you will benefit from support and guidance offered by the subject Course Leader and also from specific module leaders and, where appropriate, from the Head of Department.

Reflective personal development practices are encouraged throughout the duration of the course, which will help you to monitor your progress.

Employability in the Curriculum:

You will be able to gain employment in a variety of organisations and sectors such as professional dance companies, arts organisations, education (primary, secondary and FE), dance/arts community projects, and dance/fitness/health related industry. Alternatively, you may wish to proceed to further study such as PGCE, MA Dance, MSc Dance Science or M Phil/PhD.

All our graduates enter employment very quickly after graduation, and in a wide range of careers. Former graduates have set up their own dance companies, become choreographers and directors, teachers in the public and private sectors, or worked as freelance dance artists. The transferable skills learned through the dance programme have enabled graduates to work in areas such as marketing and retail management, and commercial and performance related activities, for example, in promotion companies and venue administration. Some of our graduates have gone into careers in the army, police force, law, social work, and physiotherapy.

In level 4, the modules 4DC002 and 4DC003 develop key dance skills in technique and repertoire, whilst 4DC004 reinforces safe practice principles in the studio and introduces the basic evidence-based components of dance science. The craft of choreography is introduced in 4DC006 and students have the experience of producing their own show in a professional theatre. Practical and theoretical work is reinforced in 4DC009 which also enables students to understand the context of the arts in society. Students develop their movement and film analysis knowledge in 4DC005.

In level 5, the key practical skills in dance are further developed in 5DC002 and 5DC003. Students combine their choreographic and technological skills in 5DC006 in which they create a multimedia show in a professional theatre. In this module they learn industry level technological skills (Final Cut Pro and Isadora) in film making. Students gain the Silver Award in Enterprise and Employability in 5DC004 in which they prepare for work placements and gain knowledge of employability concepts and transferable skills. The module 5DC007 offers students the chance to study chosen areas in more depth, such as dance in literature, dance science, dance in education, and screen dance. These often link to placement choices at level 6 and future PG courses. 5DC009 develops students' research skills which can be transferred to a wide variety of dissertation choices in level 6. They present research posters in a simulated conference environment.

In level 6, students extend their performance skills to a high level in 6DC001 and 6DC002. They choose whether to work as a dancer or choreographer in 6DC003 and produce a show in a professional theatre. The dance projects (6DC003) enable students to explore their key interests from a wide variety of areas and this is vital preparation for PG courses and future employment. Students gain the Gold Award in Enterprise and Employability in 6DC005 and this module includes a work placement and theoretical and practical studies to prepare them for a wide range of career options.
