Entry Requirements:

Entry requirements are subject to regular review. The entry requirements applicable to a particular academic year will be published on the University website (and externally as appropriate e.g. UCAS)

Students will have a good undergraduate degree in a relevant subject field. If you have relevant work experience in your subject area, this can also help you to get a place on a course. All students will be interviewed to assess their suitability and preparedness for the course. All applicants must submit an initial "Proposal for Study" upon which the learning contract can be agreed as a condition of admission.

International entry requirements and application guidance can be found on our website - International entry requirements and application guidance.

Offers are subject to approval of a research proposal.

Distinctive Features of the Course:

This is a postgraduate qualification which is wholly initiated by your own scholarly interests;

- choose from a broad range of subject areas;
- research by supervision, rather than scheduled classes, will enable you arrange your work around your personal or professional commitments;
- tutorials and feedback on work can be provided online, permitting study overseas or at a distance from the University

We have a strong postgraduate community with opportunities to attend events and encounter students across the full range of disciplines within the Faculty of Arts including Studio and Digital Art, Theatre, Music and Performance. You will also be invited to attend all guest lectures, performances and field trips that constitute a vibrant student experience at the University.

We continue to develop state of the art facilities which will greatly enhance your learning experience. Our state-of-the-art performing arts and learning centre; The Performance Hub, opened in 2011 and is the home for all of our performance courses.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The MA by Research in Performing Arts offers an exciting new opportunity for students to study at Masters level, following an area of their own academic interest and under the supervision of published experts in their fields. You will be able to experience innovative performing arts practices and develop your research and writing skills, self-direction and autonomy, working in and across, disciplines that include dance, drama, music or musical theatre. You will have the opportunity to achieve a range of subject-specific outcomes, through acquiring an advanced knowledge of concepts, and critically evaluating theories, problems and performing techniques.

Your programme of study will be based upon a Learning Contract negotiated between you and your supervising team. You will need to complete a "Proposal for Study" form indicating your topic and admission will be based upon the successful agreement of a topic and the identification of appropriate supervision. Under guidance of your principal supervisor, you will produce at least three extended non-assessed assignments, leading to a final, assessed portfolio that may include a viva voce examination.

Overview of Assessment:

Module	Title	Course Learning Outcomes
7SW008	Dissertation/Portfolio by Research in Performing Arts	MACLO1, MACLO2, MACLO3, MACLO4

Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

FHEQ states, 'Typically, holders of the [Masters] qualification will be able to:

- deal with complex issues both systematically and creatively,
- make sound judgements in the absence of complete data, and communicate their conclusions clearly to specialist and non-specialist audiences
- demonstrate self-direction and originality in tackling and solving problems, and act autonomously in planning and implementing tasks at a professional or equivalent level
- continue to advance their knowledge and understanding, and to develop new skills to a high level.

And holders will have:

- the qualities and transferable skills necessary for employment requiring:
- the exercise of initiative and personal responsibility decision-making in complex and unpredictable situations the independent learning ability required for continuing professional development.

To this end, students will negotiate and agree a series of staged tasks, relevant to their area of enquiry, leading to a final assessed dissertation. These tasks may include, depending on the nature of the project:

- Authorship of a Learning Contract together with a schedule of activities;
- Development of research methodologies appropriate to their subject discipline;
- Gathering and critical analysis of research materials;
- Gathering of primary data and their analysis
- Submission of work in draft stages, followed by a process of editing and reworking;
- Engaging with a series of progress tutorials with the principal supervisor, particularly supporting the development of self-direction, intellectual independence and your research skills through dissertations, analysis and individual projects, and the development of your creative skills through performing and leading performance;
- Seminars, workshops, master-classes, or other forms of small-research-group discussion, sometimes involving individual research presentations under the guidance of professional practitioners and visiting specialists, to develop oral presentation, negotiation and communication skills.
- Peer-learning where you discuss critically your colleagues' work, e.g. performances;
- Independent learning, whether as directed reading and listening related to essay-writing or project work or as practice for developing creative or technical skills.
- A wide variety of non-assessed curricular activities, especially those involving your participation in/or attendance at research talks, performances, etc.
- Writing (essays, learning journals, concert reviewing etc) as a means of developing research techniques, acquiring knowledge, and presenting ideas and arguments in written form;
- Studio or laboratory work, including hands-on experience in the use of electronic equipment for performance and/or audio/video recording, and for various forms of empirical work;
- Practical exercises, usually connected with the development of creative, analytical, technical and/or aural skills;
- Fieldwork projects, where you study a performing culture in situ, by such methods as attending, observing and participating in events, and interviewing performers, patrons or listeners/audience;
- The submission of a completed portfolio/dissertation edited to professional standards, carrying out an independent research project that is based within theory and/or practice-lead experience

- A viva voce presentation after submission of the portfolio/dissertation, demonstrating an ability to present information and discuss/answer questions.
- A practical master-class – where students will direct a master-class session on their performance.
- A performance examination, demonstrating an advanced level of performance skill.

Assessment Methods:

At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your working life. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities:

Written examinations (including online examinations, open and closed book examinations and quizzes)

Coursework (for example, essays, reports, portfolios, project proposals and briefs, CVs, poster presentation)

Practical (for example, oral and video presentations, laboratory work, performances, practical skills assessment)

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

Students on the MA by Research are supported by a team of supervisors, who will provide general academic and specific support for the student, including providing feedback on draft work, and guidance in developing research questions. There is additional support available where required through Performing Arts technicians and subject librarian.

Employability in the Curriculum:

The course will provide you with the knowledge and key abilities and strategies to further your artistic career independently. The MA by Research will provide an excellent preparatory pathway into doctoral research (PhD study). However, for individuals seeking to enhance their C.V. or undertake some professional enhancement, this mode of study will enable you to tailor your study towards your career pathway and combine it with your work schedule and other commitments. The wide range of subjects offered will provide relevant opportunities for individuals either within, or planning to enter, a wide range of professions to develop and evidence the acquisition of higher level skills.
