Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

---

This is a blended learning course with supportive and structured learning activities on Canvas supported by in-class activities.

The online materials and face-to-face components of the module are integrated into a complimentary learning experience, which is engaging and relevant for students and resources are accessible online. Students are provided with a road map for studying each module in the form of a Homepage on Canvas.

Each Canvas Homepage sets expectations and includes an orientation to help students understand how to successfully navigate the different online components of the course and prepare for the face-to-face meetings.

The structure of each Canvas topic follows a standard Business School layout to ensure consistency and familiarity for students and to help them navigate the different modules they will be studying. The Canvas Pages are used to present learning inputs and related activities with a narrative flow; content is structured into bite sized inputs and activities, inclusive of any Panopto recorded slides. Each module Canvas page features a balance between interactive activities and short lecture inputs.

Regular opportunities are built in for formative feedback in class and online. For summative assessments on modules with more than one tutor a marking rubric is used to ensure consistency and you will receive summative feedback in line with the University policy within four working weeks of submission.

Blended learning lends itself to enquiry-based learning – this puts less emphasis on the lecture method of teaching and more on getting students to solve problems, evaluate situations, research topics or apply principles, which is more appropriate to business education. Face-to-face sessions are delivered in workshop mode with a set of task-based activities, which draw on the online content, and enable students to practically and critically explore the topic individually and in small groups.

Opportunities are built in for students to collaborate in peer-to-peer learning activities. This could include things such as small groups using a flipped learning approach, small group case study analysis, student-led assessment unpacking, group discussions, student-led seminars and problem-based learning.

The workshop and activity-based approach to learning enables multiple opportunities for formative feedback and self-diagnosis and testing to be built into the core content for each module, and there will be regular opportunities for small group and one-to-one tutorials for all students.

The modules are developed with Universal Design in mind, and to meet all accessibility standards. For instance, downloadable transcripts will be provided for all the videos – these may be created by Panopto and then edited into a useable text or may be scripted by the author in advance of the recording. We will also ensure that there are adequate descriptions provided all of graphs, charts, images etc used in PowerPoint slides included in the transcripts. There will also be alternative text for all graphics used in page, and we will ensure that all documents, PDFs etc are formatted to best be used by screen readers.

Case studies, examples and resources are drawn from a wide range of business cultures and contexts representing our diverse and international community.

The tutor takes a pro-active role in monitoring the welfare and academic progress of disabled students within the school.

Where applicable, in-class semester assessments are arranged by the module tutor. The module tutor will, where appropriate, ensure that any arrangements made for students requiring special consideration will be checked by University Student Support and Wellbeing to ensure fairness and equality, and that the provisions of the University Equal Opportunities policy are met. These arrangements will apply to those students who have identified special learning requirements.

Employability in the Curriculum:

Enterprise and employability are at the heart of this practice-focused tourism management programme. You will engage in live projects, and problem-based learning, applying tourism concepts to a wide range of diverse organisation and destination environments. Case studies drawn from a diverse and international range of tourism businesses and destinations will aid understanding of the tourism context, while live projects will enable you to work first-hand with the challenges of a tourism business.

Critical management skills are embedded in the programme from the beginning and you will engage in a number of activities aimed at developing the personal and professional skills required in modern organisations. The course culminates in a Professional Project in which you will bring together all the skills you have acquired throughout your studies to create a business artefact relevant to a modern business environment. This will not only enable you to consolidate your employability skills, but also to demonstrate them to potential employers.

Students will be encouraged to reflect on the abilities and skills acquired and to consider them in the context of a tourism business. In their final year, students also have the opportunity to be mentored by a company director in our hugely successful Institute of Directors Mentoring Scheme.
