Entry Requirements:

Entry requirements are subject to regular review. The entry requirements applicable to a particular academic year will be published on the University website (and externally as appropriate e.g. UCAS

96 UCAS POINTS A levels - grades CCC/BCD BTEC L3 Extended Diploma or OCR Cambridge L3 Technical Extended Diploma - grades MMM BTEC L3 Diploma - grades DD Access to HE Diploma 45 L3 credits at Merit. International entry requirements and application guidance can be found at <http://www.wlv.ac.uk/international/apply> Students must usually have studied for a minimum of two years post GCSE level. However, we will consider applications from mature students who do not have two years of post-16 study, where they have relevant work experience. Please see <http://wlv.ac.uk/mature> for further information.

Distinctive Features of the Course:

The course offers an opportunity to explore a wide range of literatures, from the canonical to the popular and from diverse authors. You will learn how the English Language is used to shape not only the world, but our minds. There is a strong emphasis on the way in which language and literatures shape social and cultural identities. There will also be a focus on the politics, ethics, and ideologies of cultural representation, and issues of equality and diversity in literatures, language culture. You will experience a friendly, welcoming staff, who are dedicated to working with you to enable you to achieve your full potential. You will be taking part in sessions with internationally renowned literary critics, award-winning novels and poets. You will also have the opportunity to participate in our Literatures@Wolves Culture Programme, including visits to sites of regional, national and international interest, with regular events on Campus, theatre performances, visits to museums, galleries and events. We also aim to embed opportunities for assessment and work experience that plays to your strengths, and that will support your skills for employment on graduation. You will be able to complete a Student Record of Achievement, a record of skills and experiences to present to prospective employers. Following graduation and the required classification, you will be able to go onto our Masters degree in English or Popular Culture, and also consider entering our PhD programme.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The course aims to inspire a passion for and knowledge of literary and cultural texts from the medieval era to the present day, by writers from the West Midlands to the wider world beyond. Another aim of the course is to enable you to learn about the form and functions of the English language in a wide variety of contexts and to promote your understanding of the political and ideological significance of language, literature and culture in a wide range of social and historical contexts, especially in relation to gender, sexuality, ethnicity, religion, class and disability. One other important aim is to develop your awareness of the significance of ethical evaluations of reading, writing and linguistic interpretation, supporting an understanding of equality, diversity, and inclusion in literature, language and culture. You will be encouraged to reflect critically on literary and linguistic production and reception, value and cultural capital. The course aims to advance your understanding of the different forms, aesthetics, genres, and functions of literary and cultural texts and to enhance your verbal, written and digital communication skills for developing and sustaining a professional career. Combining Language and Literatures will foster your skills in critical and creative thinking, analysis, research, and problem-solving, for academic success and employment beyond your degree. Ultimately the aim is to help you develop your confidence in making your voice heard, at university, in employment, and in culture and society.

These may include: Lectures, Seminars, Tutorials and supervisory meetings, Interactive workshops, Independent research, Individual and group presentations, In-class quizzes and tests, The use of digital resources for both assignments and in-class activities, Online forums, Online portfolios, blogs, and digital artefacts related to graduate employability, Opportunities for work-based learning, Opportunities for studying abroad. At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and evaluate your learning and progress, and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your graduate employment. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities: Coursework: for example: essays; reports; portfolios; project proposals and briefs; CVs; poster presentations; digital artefacts; creative/imaginative pieces; public engagement artefacts; practical (for example: verbal and video presentations); podcasts; performances; practical skills assessment. You will also have the opportunity to participate in group work, and individual assessment. Formative (draft) assessment is built into modules at every level to enable you to achieve your full potential in summative (graded) assessment, and practice crucial skills for academic success. Students receive feedback within 4 weeks of submission via the University VLE; types of feedback can include feedback grids, comments on the submission portal, audio feedback. A sample of work is moderated by a member of the subject team. Students have the opportunity to discuss their feedback in one-to-one tutorials by appointment. Students are at the heart of our assessment design; you will have opportunities to select and develop assessment that suits your strengths, and that develops new skills and abilities. In the final year of your undergraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Assessment Methods:

At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your working life. In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

General University support: University Learning Centres are the key source of academic information for students. Learning Centres provide physical library resources (books, journal, DVDs etc.) and offer a range of study areas to allow students to study in the environment that suit them best: Social areas, quiet and silent areas. Learning Centres also provide access to wide range of online information sources, including eBooks, e-Journals and subject databases. Learning Centres also provide students with academic skills support via the Skills for Learning programme. Students on campus can attend workshops or ask for one-to-one help on a range of skills such as academic writing and referencing. Students can access a range of online skills material at: www.wlv.ac.uk/lib/skills. The University also has a host of other services to support you, please take a look at the Student Support website: www.wlv.ac.uk/current-students/student-support/. If you have any questions, need help or advice then ASK@WLV is there for you: www.wlv.ac.uk/current-students/askwlv/. The University Student Support website offers advice on a variety of matters (careers, counselling, student union advice, etc.) Students can also access these services by booking appointment with the SU, careers, counselling services, etc. Course specific support: You will be assigned an academic coach when you join our course, who will act as your personal tutor at levels 3 and 4. Your academic coach will provide academic support and pastoral care, to improve engagement and facilitate learning whilst enabling you to gain transferable skills for future employment. This role will transfer to a member of the academic staff in the English Literatures or English Language team in levels 5 and 6 of your course. Your programme Leader will also be available throughout the entirety of your degree to offer academic and pastoral support, and sign-posting to other student services.

Employability in the Curriculum:

This degree equips students for employment in any area where critical thinking, analytical skills, and where exemplary written and verbal communication skills are important. English Language and Literatures graduates are valued for their capabilities in critical thinking, evidence gathering and evaluation, argument or point-of-view construction and advocacy, and problem solving, with these transferable skills proving highly desirable throughout the employment market. Many graduates have proceeded to postgraduate study, gaining Masters degrees, teaching and other postgraduate professional qualifications, and PhDs. Our graduates go into diverse careers and occupations, including education at all levels, management and leadership, local government, librarianship and information services, social work, the civil service, retail and the service sector, fundraising and charity work, journalism and professional writing, proof-reading, copyediting and publishing. Alongside opportunities for placements and work/volunteering experience alongside your studies, employability is embedded into your course's curriculum in each semester at every level of study via the Literatures@Wolves Culture Programme. You will have the opportunity to attend cultural events and activities both on campus and on a regional/national level, and gain experiences and skills that are valued by graduate employers. A strand of employability-related assessment is linked to modules participating in the Culture Programme. The programme has the following aims:

- Enhancing your learning experience, progression, and achievement
- Enabling a sense of community and belonging amongst your colleagues on the course, supporting your sense of belonging and well-being
- Empowering you to see yourself as an active participant in diverse forms of culture
- Supporting student experiences that can be translated into enhanced appeal for prospective employers of our graduates via the Record of Student Achievement. Our course's Record of Student Achievement enables you to create a digital portfolio of your experiences, achievements, and transferable skills developed during the lifecycle of your programme. Activities/experiences to be recorded might encompass an articulation of how certain assessment feeds into graduate employability for certain sectors, to experiences of working as part of a team/community, and participation in the English Literatures@Wolves Culture programme.
