Those who do not meet the entry requirements may be offered an alternative course. Students may apply for RPL and receive credit, subject to the guidelines set out in the University of Wolverhampton RPL guidelines.

Distinctive Features of the Course:

TESOL & English Language students get to know each other and the teaching staff very well, and regard their lecturers as friendly and approachable. The students benefit hugely from this close interaction, which enables progress to be carefully monitored. TESOL & English Language undergraduates come from a range of backgrounds, and all individuals are encouraged to make the best of their abilities. A distinguishing feature of the course is the expertise and enthusiasm of the teaching staff in face-to-face contact with students. The interactive and communicative methodology used ensures that a clear group identity is quickly established. Students are encouraged to work together throughout the course in order to support each other, build confidence and develop cooperative skills. The innovative nature of our assessments has been highlighted as a particular strength. TESOL & English Language graduates from our School are gaining an excellent reputation locally, nationally and globally. They are regarded as professional, confident, committed, independent and resourceful with a high degree of practical and theoretical knowledge. They are highly employable, and those who progress to a PGCE or equivalent have an advantage over students from a non-teaching background.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The English Language & TESOL course aims to develop your understanding of the nature of language and how it works. This includes the processes involved in language learning; the main features of the linguistic systems; the formal, sociological, psychological and applied perspectives of systematic language study; the applicability of current language teaching approaches; a range of technologies; appropriate learning objectives for different materials, and areas of cultural diversity. The course seeks to equip you with the practical and theoretical knowledge and skills, and the personal and professional values needed to achieve success. Many of our students opt for a career using ESOL, and eventually take on leading roles in local, national and global communities. Others choose a related career path requiring an in-depth knowledge of language, including forensic linguistics, computational research, speech and language therapy and publishing. The course also provides a solid foundation from which to undertake continuing professional development after graduation. We welcome students from a wide range of backgrounds and we make no assumptions about your prior experience of the study of English Language or the teaching of English in the ESOL classroom.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

Learning largely takes place in interactive workshops/lectures that utilise an inclusive and communicative methodology. Learning activities include listening and note-taking, pair work, group work & whole class discussion. Data collection and analysis is a feature of most of the modules and individual or group presentation may form part of the work. Tutorial time is built into modules to ensure a degree of individual contact. Out of class, you are encouraged to meet to prepare teaching practice/assignments and to read widely. You will undertake sustained independent study in your final year. TESOL modules also involve teaching practice. You will get the chance to work with a range of learners from fellow students at the University to English for Speakers of Other Languages [ESOL] learners in the community. The workload for TESOL is particularly demanding. In addition to the normal reading related to lectures, students are required to attend the university for several hours over and above the weekly lecture session (for which 100% attendance is required) in order to collaborate on planning and materials preparation. Although demanding, it is an invaluable experience as it prepares you for further study and the workplace; you know exactly what will be expected of you and, as a result, are highly employable. Combining TESOL and English Language means that you may have the possibility to spend a year abroad (usually between Levels 5 & 6), often in a teaching post, which will develop your maturity and resourcefulness, and enhance your independence and spirit of enterprise. In all modules you will acquire digital literacy through a variety of tasks and activities and will develop reflective skills which will allow you to analyse concepts and theories and apply them to specific contexts.

Assessment Methods:

At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your working life. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities:

Written examinations (including online examinations, open and closed book examinations and quizzes)
Coursework (for example, essays, reports, portfolios, project proposals and briefs, CVs, poster presentation)
Practical (for example, oral and video presentations, laboratory work, performances, practical skills assessment)

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

University Learning Centres are the key source of academic information for students. Learning Centres provide physical library resources (books, journal, DVDs etc.) and offer a range of study areas to allow students to study in the environment that suit them best: Social areas, quiet and silent areas. Learning Centres also provide access to wide range of online information sources, including eBooks, e-Journals and subject databases. Learning Centres also provide students with academic skills support via the Skills for Learning programme. Students on campus can attend workshops or ask for one-to-one help on a range of skills such as academic writing and referencing. Students can access a range of online skills material at: www.wlv.ac.uk/lib/skills. The University Student Support website offers advice on a variety of matters (careers, counselling, student union advice, etc.) Students can also access these services by booking appointment with the SU, careers, counselling services, etc.

Employability in the Curriculum:

TESOL modules also involve teaching practice and you will get the chance to work with a range of learners from fellow students at the University to English for Speakers of Other Languages [ESOL] learners in the community. In all modules you will acquire digital literacy through a variety of tasks and activities and will develop reflective skills which will allow you to analyse concepts and theories and apply them to specific contexts.
