Entry Requirements:

Entry requirements are subject to regular review. The entry requirements applicable to a particular academic year will be published on the University website (and externally as appropriate e.g. UCAS)

240-280 UCAS points with a minimum of 180 points from at least two 'A' levels. It is a requirement of the course that you serve with a branch of HM Reserve Forces. This will require you to be a British passport holder, pass a medical examination and fitness tests appropriate for your branch of service. Students will be required to also meet the entry requirements for HM Armed Forces, please see web-site for details. Should a student not be able to meet these they can transfer onto the BA (Hons) War Studies degree.

Distinctive Features of the Course:

It is believed that this degree is the first undergraduate programme that incorporates service with HM Armed Forces as a requirement. It is academically rigorous with modules directly relating to your military service (e.g. 4PL002: British Military Reserves, 5PL006: Military Command and Leadership). Service with the Armed Forces will develop your fitness, confidence, resilience, leadership skills and expand your horizons through opportunities for travel. Training with the Armed Forces also provides the chance to learn specific skills such as signalling, driving heavy vehicles, combat first aid, etc.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The BSc (Hons) Armed Forces degree is a programme intended to provide the students with the unique opportunity to develop their career within HM Reserve Forces by serving with a reserve force of their choosing whilst simultaneously completing an academically rigorous course of study with a strong focus on military history. The academic content of the course enhances the student's knowledge of the history of the British Armed Forces, provides the ability to analyse complex problems relating to war, international relations and leadership, and develops the student's ability to present written and verbal arguments in a clear and convincing fashion.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

Students will engage in a wide variety of learning activities, for example from formal lectures and seminars through to electronic work groups engaged in problem solving exercises. In addition students will attend work based training, learning and development opportunities, for example the territorial army / reserve training programme. Through such, students will learn to become digitally literate and global citizens who are both enterprising and knowledgeable.

Assessment Methods:

At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your working life. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities:

Written examinations (including online examinations, open and closed book examinations and quizzes)
Coursework (for example, essays, reports, portfolios, project proposals and briefs, CVs, poster presentation)
Practical (for example, oral and video presentations, laboratory work, performances, practical skills assessment)

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

A comprehensive suite of study skill support is available centrally from Student Support, which provides informal advice, study guides, drop-in sessions and one to one coaching for students struggling with their assignments. Within the course itself seminar time is dedicated to discussing assignment tasks, grades and methodologies. Beyond the classroom, students are encouraged to visit their module leader and personal tutor during office hours to discuss their work.

A key element for developing study skills is the provision of feedback on marked assignments. All students will have the opportunity to review comments on their assignments and discuss them with their relevant module leaders.

Employability in the Curriculum:

All students on the course are required to become members of a reserve force of their choosing. Serving with a reserve force provides a unique opportunity for personal development. Students will develop their physical fitness, personal confidence and leadership skills. There is also scope for students to travel around the world as part of their training.
