These applicants will be processed through standard procedures, which may involve an interview as part of the process. Please see <http://wlv.ac.uk/mature> for further information.

Applicants who do not meet the entry requirements may be offered an alternative course.

Distinctive Features of the Course:

It is believed that this degree is the first undergraduate programme that incorporates service with HM Armed Forces as a requirement. It is academically rigorous with modules directly relating to your military service (e.g. 4PL002: British Military Reserves, 5PL006: Military Command and Leadership). Service with the Armed Forces will develop your fitness, confidence, resilience, leadership skills and expand your horizons through opportunities for travel. Training with the Armed Forces also provides the chance to learn specific skills such as signalling, driving heavy vehicles, combat first aid, etc.

You can develop the skills and knowledge that you need to study at undergraduate level, building on your strengths and working on your weaknesses, so that you can feel confident that by the end you are ready to commence a degree course, and to apply the skills to undertake the directed and independent learning which will help you to achieve your potential. This will allow you to embark on Level 4 study in an appropriate undergraduate discipline or combined award, confident that you have developed the skills and chosen the most relevant subject area(s) to specialise in, which will allow you to perform strongly at degree level and enhance your career aims.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The BSc (Hons) Armed Forces degree is a programme intended to provide the students with the unique opportunity to develop their career within HM Reserve Forces by serving with a reserve force of their choosing whilst simultaneously completing an academically rigorous course of study with a strong focus on military history. The academic content of the course enhances the student's knowledge of the history of the British Armed Forces, provides the ability to analyse complex problems relating to war, international relations and leadership, and develops the student's ability to present written and verbal arguments in a clear and convincing fashion.

Students will engage in a wide variety of learning activities, for example from formal lectures and seminars through to electronic work groups engaged in problem solving exercises. In addition students will attend work based training, learning and development opportunities, for example the territorial army / reserve training programme. Through such, students will learn to become digitally literate and global citizens who are both enterprising and knowledgeable.

Student Support:

A comprehensive suite of study skill support is available centrally from Student Support, which provides informal advice, study guides, drop-in sessions and one to one coaching for students struggling with their assignments. Within the course itself seminar time is dedicated to discussing assignment tasks, grades and methodologies. Beyond the classroom, students are encouraged to visit their module leader and personal tutor during office hours to discuss their work.

A key element for developing study skills is the provision of feedback on marked assignments. All students will have the opportunity to review comments on their assignments and discuss them with their relevant module leaders.

Employability in the Curriculum:

---

All students on the course are required to become members of a reserve force of their choosing. Serving with a reserve force provides a unique opportunity for personal development. Students will develop their physical fitness, personal confidence and leadership skills. There is also scope for students to travel around the world as part of their training.
