Distinctive Features of the Course:

- At level 3 you can develop the skills and knowledge that you need to study at undergraduate level, building on your strengths and working on your weaknesses, so that you can feel confident that by the end of the first year that you are ready to commence a degree course, and to apply the skills to undertake the directed and independent learning which will help you to achieve your potential.
- This course develops students' knowledge and skills through theoretical and evidence-based practice, and through application of these important sociological tools to a range of contemporary topics.
- This course encourages community-based learning through advocacy and placements in not-for-profit agencies and organisations. The Sociology Department at The University of Wolverhampton are pioneers of accredited volunteering in the UK and these modules are embedded in the course as an accredited part of the student learning experience.
- Graduate employability is embedded throughout the degree programme at The University of Wolverhampton, developing students' expertise in a range of key employer-identified skills that prepare our students for the workforce of the future.
- The teaching team are all active researchers who bring their research expertise into the classroom to share their practical experiences of 'doing Sociology'.

Educational Aims of the Course:

The Foundation Year will introduce you to studying at university. You will develop your academic and study skills alongside studying modules that introduce you to the disciplines offered by courses across the Faculty. The Foundation Year will therefore provide a springboard for successful study at levels 4, 5 and 6.

A Sociology degree from The University of Wolverhampton equips students with expertise in employer-identified skills and attributes for work in the private, public, and not-for-profit sectors. This includes not only traditional skills such as organisation and time-management but also problem solving, digital skills, the ability to read and interpret data, and the proficiency to engage with a range of audiences. These skills are embedded through the course programme that offers students the opportunity to understand and analyse the complexities of the world at the local, regional, national, and international, level.

During your studies, you will learn how to critically apply a diverse range of concepts, theories and methods essential to what we call the 'sociological imagination' – that special way of identifying, describing and understanding the nature of social life. This will entail you developing a critical understanding of a range of institutional conditions, cultural processes and social relations and applying these concepts, theories and methods that are unique to this exciting discipline.

At each level of study, students are given the opportunity to undertake advocacy or accredited voluntary work for, and with, not-for-profit agencies and organisations in the local community – an experience that broadens sociological understanding, deepens appreciation of civic responsibility and further enhances opportunities for graduate employment.

Student Support:

General University support:

University Learning Centres are the key source of academic information for students. Learning Centres provide physical library resources (books, journal, DVDs etc.) and offer a range of study areas to allow students to study in the environment that suit them best: Social areas, quiet and silent areas. Learning Centres also provide access to wide range of online information sources, including eBooks, e-Journals and subject databases. Learning Centres also provide students with academic skills support via the Skills for Learning programme. Students on campus can attend workshops or ask for one-to-one help on a range of skills such as academic writing and referencing. Students can access a range of online skills material at:

www.wlv.ac.uk/lib/skills.

The University also has a host of other services to support you, please take a look at the Student Support website: www.wlv.ac.uk/current-students/student-support/. If you have any questions, need help or advice then ASK@WLV is there for you: www.wlv.ac.uk/current-students/askwlv/.

Course Specific Support

Students are allocated an academic coach in their first year to support their transition to higher education and thereafter will be allocated a personal tutor that will support with academic and pastoral enquiries. Students are supported in their academic achievement with one-to-one and group tutorials and through assessment unpacking sessions and detailed feedback on their work, including audio-visual feedback.

Employability in the Curriculum:

As a result of engagement with employers, key employability skills and attributes as identified by employers are embedded throughout the Sociology programme at The University of Wolverhampton. This includes problem solving, report writing, the ability to read and interpret data, and digital literacy. This is delivered through assessments (e.g. writing BLOGS, letter writing and creating podcasts), and modules such as Advocacy in Action which get students engaging with local not-for-profit organisation to create awareness around social issues. Accredited volunteering opportunities enable students to gain practical experience putting Sociology into practice. Where appropriate employers will contribute to modules at each level of the curriculum.

Sociology enables graduates to enter a range of multi-vocational professions and a degree in Sociology from The University of Wolverhampton equips graduates with the knowledge and capability to work in a broad range of private, public and not-for-profit organisations. Recent graduates have been employed in a range of vocations including as neighbourhood development officers, volunteer management, family support workers, social care workers, teachers, housing officers, social inclusion workers and care managers. Graduates are also well equipped to continue their post-graduate studies in Sociology, Education, Teacher Training, Social Care, and Social Work.
