Course Information

Location of Delivery:	University of Wolverhampton
Category of Partnership:	Not delivered in partnership
Teaching Institution:	University of Wolverhampton
Open / Closed Course:	This course is open to all suitably qualified candidates.

Entry Requirements:

Entry requirements are subject to regular review. The entry requirements applicable to a particular academic year will be published on the University website (and externally as appropriate e.g. UCAS)

- 240-280 UCAS points with a minimum of 180 points from at least two 'A' levels
- BTEC QCF Extended Diploma grade MMM, BTEC QCF Diploma grade DD
- Access to HE Diploma full award (Pass of 60 credits - of which a minimum of 45 credits must be at level 3 including 18 at Merit or Distinction).

Distinctive Features of the Course:

- You will be able to study key theories and methods of each discipline, and apply them to particular sociological and historical themes and issues.
- You will have the opportunity to engage in community-based learning through placement in local voluntary agencies, organisations and work environments.
- You will be taught by skilled tutors and active researchers who are eager to share their scholarships and practical experiences of 'doing history and sociology'.

A placement can be undertaken anywhere; local, national or even, in some instances, international. During a placement, you will be doing similar work to a normal employee of the organisation giving you a unique insight into your chosen profession or sector, the opportunity to acquire crucial personal skills and also the opportunity to build a network of useful contacts. Many companies that employ graduates use placement programmes as a method of recruitment so you could be fast tracked into employment or onto one of their graduate schemes if you impress them.

The team at The Workplace constantly search for new placement opportunities but if you find an opportunity that interests you or you have been successful in securing one yourself, contact them for further information and support.

Educational Aims of the Course:

This programme of study offers you the chance to analyse and understand the complexities of the social world in its historical and contemporary context. During your studies, you will learn about those concepts, theories and methods essential to what we call an historical and sociological imagination - those special ways of identifying, describing and evaluating the past and the present.

Over the course of your studies, you will develop critical understanding of a range of historical and contemporary institutional conditions, cultural processes and social relations, within and across societies. In the course of learning selected 'social facts' society, you will be able to apply those concepts, theories and methods that are unique to these exciting disciplines.

Using traditional and enhanced electronic forms of learning, you will develop your skills for gathering evidence and applying theories to a range of historical and sociological issues. In the process, you will be encouraged to share ideas and be intellectually enterprising. You will also have the opportunity to undertake accredited volunteer work in the local community – an experience that allows you to apply the skills you have acquired in the classroom to a range of social settings and provide you with valuable experiences which enhance your employability upon graduating. Students are encouraged to share knowledge, be enterprising with their ideas, deepen their appreciation of civic responsibility and enhance their opportunities for employment.

Teaching, Learning and Assessment:

Learning will be face-to-face and on-line, and will consist of the following:

- Lectures
- Seminars
- One-to-one and Group Tutorials
- Debates
- Small and large group work
- Face-to-face and on-line discussion forums and wikis
- Student Presentations
- Poster Sessions
- Work and community-based learning through placements (to support employability skills)
- Research activities
- Independent and guided study
- Collaborative on-line tasks and activities
- Video and image analysis
- Case Studies
- Role Play

The on-line activities and electronic presentations that students will prepare will support their digital literacy.

The group tasks and seminars will support students' enterprising ideas.

The international perspectives to topics taken in lectures and learning tasks will support students' global citizenship.

Student Support:

Where appropriate, online activities will support learning.

Support for the development of academic skills is embedded in Level 4 Core modules. In addition, there is specialist Academic practice modules at Level 4 and LIS support for academic skills development.

Students will receive feedback informally throughout the modules and formally through written feedback for their formative and summative assignments. This feedback will be constructive and indicate to students how to progress in their learning.

Students will be supported through their Project or Community Link or Placement modules by an allocated academic supervisor.

All students will have a personal tutor to support their progress throughout their course. Tutors are regularly available to meet with students to discuss any issues they wish to raise and to map their progress.

The Academic Support Tutors within SSHIPs provided additional specialised learning support for students on an individual basis.

Employability in the Curriculum:

The skills, competencies and knowledge you learn through sociological and historical study are directly relevant to a variety of careers. Sociology graduates are often employed in the public sector: doing social research in the civil service, local government or with think tanks; public sector management; as professional practitioners or working on projects in areas concerning social inequalities and social exclusion. History graduates are often employed in libraries and information work, archive management, museum administration and heritage management. Local government, the civil service, the media, teaching and a range of business and commercial enterprises actively seek graduates with sociology and history degrees. Many of our students also continue their studies taking a range of post-graduate courses.

The completion of a Sandwich Year will enable you to gain valuable hands on experience in a relevant work environment. This will not only provide additional practical subject skills but it will also develop personal transferable skills such as communication skills, problem solving skills and demonstrate competency in working with other people. This will increase your employability and assist you in gaining employment in the future.
