At the University of Wolverhampton, a variety of modes of assessment will be used to support and test your learning and progress and to help you develop capabilities that are valued beyond your University studies and into your working life. Your course may include a variety of assessment activities:

Written examinations (including online examinations, open and closed book examinations and quizzes)
Coursework (for example, essays, reports, portfolios, project proposals and briefs, CVs, poster presentation)
Practical (for example, oral and video presentations, laboratory work, performances, practical skills assessment)

In the final year of your undergraduate degree, and at the end of your postgraduate degree, you are likely to be expected to write an extended piece of work or research, such as a dissertation or a practice-based piece of research.

Student Support:

The course requirements and assessed tasks are explained in a course handbook, module guide and portfolio documentation. These are explained at induction and frequently referenced during the course. The module includes a workshop on the assessed task. The module leader will be available for consultation before and after teaching sessions.

Employability in the Curriculum:

Best Interests Assessors undertake a range of duties under the Schedule A1 of the Mental Capacity Act 2005 (otherwise known as the Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards or DoLS). Supervisory bodies commission assessments in order to determine whether managing authorities (care homes and hospitals) should be authorised to deprive a person of their liberty in order to receive care and treatment. Supervisory bodies must be satisfied that the Best Interests Assessor has successfully completed an approved course such as the one offered by the University of Wolverhampton.
